Summer of 2007 when Todd Preston and MCHS celebrated the new fence they had placed around little Nora's and Robert's graves. The family was invited and Aunt Lillie, Brenda's sister, sang a special song and told the story surrounding little Nora's death of diphtheria in 1910. Pap Rousseau always planned to place a sturdy fence around the graves, but failed to get to. So, when Todd heard about it, he brought the iron railings from the Methodist Church renovation and used those!

That's Mary who sang the song. But, Aunt Lillie had told her the story.

“ My very first memory of Brenda was on Decoration Day when I was about 5 years old. She went with us to pick wild strawberries on the hillside. Always loved running into her, she always had a story to tell and a laugh for you. Ginger may you embrace the beautiful memories you have of her during this time...
