“ When I think of Kelli, I see her as a little blonde with the prettiest blue eyes and smile..running around or riding bikes with the rest of us in our neighborhood..then, as a beautiful young and sassy young lady...back then, it was just the Whitaker's, Risner's, Taulbee's, Hiner's with kids..the Whitaker's were the youngest amount our crowd. (I think Andrea or Cindy was the oldest and Josh was the youngest). Scottie and I were just reminiscing not so long ago about the blessed childhood we had there on Grape Creek. The most stressful thing we had to worry about was getting home on time and hoping the parents didn't find out we went a little further than we were allowed on any given day or went in a neighbors house when we were only to play in the yard. Our parents all worked and most of us went to church..then, life happens..Josh, Jimmy, Junior and now, Kelli. Only God knows why and that's sometimes tough to understand. My family sends many prayers during this time of deep heartbreak. May God comfort Butch, Anna Mae, Scottie and the rest of the family and friends in a way that only He can.

So sorry for your loss. Your son went to school with our daughter. We had a hard time with her then. She was a close friend with Josh. She had already lost her brother. Not an easy thing at all. God bless you both and Scott. Hold on to God to get you peace.
