“ For those of you who don't know, Terry wasn't my blood grandpa but he has been around since before I was born. To me he WAS my grandpa plus more. He never missed a birthday or christmas, He drove me to and from school every single day of elementary school, he was the one always willing to get down in the floor and play go fish and checkers with me, he was the one who was always bringing me home a stuffed animal just because he was thinking of me. Terry was always the one who could put a smile on my face and make me laugh no matter the situation, most of the time it was when we were supposed to be serious, but that's just the type of person he was. He had always been here for me making sure I was safe and never hungry. He would sneak me extra snack money on the way to school and once I was old enough to drive he always made sure i had gas money and a little extra "hamburger money". He was around for all my accomplishments and big steps in life up til now. Last Friday I seen him for the last time and didn't even realize it. I didn't always hug him but there was never a time I left without telling him I loved him, his response every time would be "You know I love you Lauren Grace". I know he loved me but what I would give to hear him say it just one more time, or to have him here with me for my future wedding or when I buy a house. What I would give to spend just one more day with him. Anyone who knew him was so lucky. He's in a better place now but there will never be a day I don't miss him like crazy.

RIP I love you so much ❤️
